Review of a mixed conventional/organic grape tomato packing facility of approximately 98,000 sq ft (17,000 cooled storage) operating with approximately 100 workers and in one shift from September to June. Grape tomatoes are received from the organization's growing operations, stored, rinsed with a recirculated chlorinated solution (not used with organic product) and single-pass spray bar of chlorine dioxide (with potable water rinse per label), graded/inspected manually and with an automated system, packed into a variety of cartons and clamshells, stored, and shipped.
